Present Portrait Of Hero Son To Highest U.S. Defense Officials

An oil portrait of their son, Sgt. Meyer Levin, bombardier, killed in the Battle of the Pacific in 1943, was presented by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Levin, of 1504 Thirty-third Street, Brooklyn, N.Y., to W. Stuart Symington, Secretary of the Air Force, and Mr. Levin solemnly told a gathering of America's highest defense officials in Washington:

"As foreign-born Americans, we are proud to say that we gave something fine to our country in our son, Sgt. Meyer Levin.

"We have travelled all over the world. No other country could compare with the ideals of liberty and freedom that are here. We Jews were persecuted in Czarist Russia; we have no rights. But here it was something wonderful; here it was equality to everyone who came to the United States."

Sergeant Levin was bombardier on Capt. Colin Kelly's attack on the Japanese battleship which cost the Captain his life three days after Pearl Harbor. Meyer survived that battle and many others but was killed in the crash of a B-17 Flying Fortress off the Island of New Britain in 1943. For his heroic service he won the Distinguished Flying Cross and Silver Star.

The ceremony was described by U. S. Secretary of Defense James Forrestal as "symbolic of the unity of this nation and the contribution men of all creeds make for its preservation." Secretary Symington, speaking in behalf of the Air Force, told the greying couple that they who were born in Europe "are true Americans in the highest tradition."

"It is not where you were born that counts," he continued. "The Indians are the only Americans who are not immigrants or of immigrant stock. Nor is it a matter of [illegible] America is a [illegible] ...while families trace their origins to humble beginnings. Nor is it a matter of financial status. America has offered and continues to offer under its free democratic system unlimited opportunities for men and women to make an honest living for themselves and their families.

"Nor is it a matter of religion. The armies of Washington, and Lee, and Grant, and Pershing, and MacArthur, and Eisenhower, had Catholics and Protestants and Jews, who fought side by side as

OVER $16,500,000 GIVEN BY WOMEN TO DRIVES

Mrs. Ernest G. Wadel, of Dallas, Tex., chairman of the United Jewish Appeal's National Women's Division, announced that more than $16,500,000 has been contributed by American Jewish women to community campaigns throughout the nation that are participating in the appeal's drive for $250,000,000.

Reporting that $16,501,895 has been raised by women's divisions of local drives this year, Mrs. Wadel said that the figures were incomplete and represent only 287 communities out of 373 Women's divisions campaigning this year.

She said that funds are being used to provide medical care, health services, housing and schooling for women and their children, recently arrived in Israel from Cyprus, "while they [illegible] for the time when their husbands will be enabled to join them and they can begin to build new lives in Israel."

U.P.A. Invites 103 Funds To Parley

Herman L. Weisman, acting chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, has forwarded an invitation to 103 Jewish welfare funds requesting that each designate two representatives to meet the appeal for implementing a decision to include one-third representation of Jewish communities on the governing bodies of the appeal.

At the same time, Mr. Weisman forwarded an extensive memorandum to these welfare funds reviewing the developments that led to the appeal's decision for one-third representation. These funds are members of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. It was learned that announcement would be made in the near future when and where the meeting of fund representatives and the appeal would take place.

The memorandum made no mention of the dissident group that is opposed to the appeal's administration. This group organized in Pittsburgh last month under the title of the Committee of Contributors and Workers. Among other demands, it has requested 50 per cent representation of Jewish welfare funds on the governing bodies of the appeal. Several members of the Committee of Contributors and Workers are members of the appeal's board of directors.

Mr. Weisman's memorandum called attention to the adoption of a resolution by the appeal's executive committee regarding the one-third representation and its final adoption by 2,000 delegates at the appeal convention in Chicago. The memorandum said:

"We can assure you that the UPA is equal to bringing about the most effective and representative organization which will ensure a completely unified effort enabling the American Jewish community to rise to the unprecedented opportunity for Jewish settlement in Israel and for the relief to our brethren overseas."

The United Palestine Appeal, the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Service for New Americans are the major beneficiaries that combine to form the United Jewish Appeal. The United Jewish Appeal is currently engaged in a campaign for $250,000,000.

The Palestine appeal is devoted to the immigration, settlement and the upbuilding of Israel, and for the most part its governing bodies are composed of officials repre-

Eban Rejects Negeb Plan Of U. N.

Aubrey S. Eban, Israel representative to the United Nations, unequivocally rejected any proposition that the Israelis give up any part of the Negeb and denied the right of the U. N. to interfere with Israel's "territorial integrity."

Addressing the opening meeting at Paris of an international conference on Jewish relief and rehabilitation, Mr. Eban said: "The (U. N.) Charter itself . . . forbids anybody from tampering with Israel's frontiers and strengthens Israel in its determination to resist such interference."

He argued that "the fact that a state has come into existence, endowed with a large measure of international recognition, modifies the freedom of the (U.N.) General Assembly to dispose of the territories and prerogatives of that state."

"We do not regard the General Assembly as standing in the same relation to Palestine in 1948 as it did in 1947," he declared.

He recalled that a year ago Palestine was a mandated territory and protested that "today, all that is different."

Mr. Eban continued, "We therefore repudiate any attempt to equalize the rights, claims and position" of Israel and Egypt with regard to the Negeb. "The United Nations cannot, without Israel's consent, detach the Negeb from Israel's sovereignty."

Although the U. N. had remained "empty-handed and inert while the forces of aggression descended upon Israel," Mr. Eban declared, "this does not mean that the United Nations can perform no useful function."

He proposed, first, that the General Assembly affirm the existence of the state of Israel as a "domi-

5,000 REFUGEES IN SHANGHAI WANT OUT

Over 5,000 European Jewish refugees stranded in Shanghai pleaded for "an emergency evacuation permit for shelter in any place in U.S. territory, irrespective of any later decision" in their case. All non-Chinese in Shanghai are being removed by their respective governments and the Jewish refugees are the only Europeans left behind.

In a cable to Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American and World Jewish Congress, the Shanghai Refugee Council urged the Congress to intercede with the U.S. Government. Dr. Robert S. Marcus, political director of the Congress, announced that such intercession has already been made. He pointed out that on a number of earlier occasions the Congress had appealed to the U.S. Government to allow immigration of the Shanghai group, many of whom survived Japanese concentration camps and have continued to exist under precarious conditions since the end of the war.

Dr. Marcus noted that the Displaced Persons Act passed by the 80th Congress denied its benefits to the Shanghai refugees since the act applies only to displaced persons who on January 1, 1948, were in Italy or in specified areas of Germany and Austria. Furthermore, the act automatically terminated President Truman's directive of December 22, 1945, under which the Shanghai refugees were eligible for entry into the U. S.

Was Prime Developer Of Credit Buying

Henry Ittleson, chairman of the board of the C. I. T. Financial Corporation, 1 Park Avenue, New York, formerly the Commercial Investment Trust Corporation, died at his residence, 965 Fifth Avenue, after a long illness, at the age of seventy-seven.

Mr. Ittleson was a philanthropist and a patron of many charities, but he was known first of all as the prime developer of that peculiarly American institution, installment buying. His C. I. T. Corporation was the nation's largest independent sales finance company. It handled $2,600,000,000 in deferred paper last year, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

Mr. Ittleson was born abroad, of American parents, and was educated in New York. While still in his teens, he went West, and read law in a frontier law office in Colorado. He began his career in the real estate business in Den-

Says Austria Wants Jews In Nation

Chancellor Leopold Figl, speaking in Vienna, Austria, at memorial exercises for the Austrian Jews murdered by the Nazis, declared:

"All Austria bows her head with me in this hour in sorrow but also in shame at the thought of what you suffered ten years ago, though to the honor of this land it cannot be said too often that all these crimes and horrors were thought out and organized beyond our frontiers."

The Chancellor reminded his audience of his own seven years in a concentration camp, together with many Ministers of the present Cabinet, declaring: "I felt myself doubly obligated to come to you to tell you how much I feel this sorrowful day of memory and how alive in me is the memory of the suffering of thousands of those of your faith and how strong is my memory of the all-too great number of your dead comrades who also were my comrades.

"Your ceremony today is for

U.P.A. FEARS RIVAL FUND DRIVE BY NEW COMMITTEE

Five of the top executives of the United Palestine Appeal resigned, widening the split in the agency that collects millions of dollars annually from American Jews for the new State of Israel.

The five were Harry Seeve, administrator, who has been acting chief of the office since the resignation of Henry Montor as executive director last Oct. 21; Dr. Martin Rosenbluth, director of information; Ellis Radinsky, director of community contacts; Dr. George Stefansky, director of research; and Sidney S. Green, controller.

They all objected, in a letter to Herman L. Weisman, acting national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, that the controlling body of the Appeal was not representative of the many local Jewish organizations that raised its funds, and that the Appeal was dominated as to policy by the Zionist Organization of America.

In rebuttal, Mr. Weisman charged that the five staff executives had quit out of loyalty to Mr. Montor and his policies, and that in leaving "they simply beat me to the gun anyway." He also charged that the six men would not openly disavow that they intended to set up a rival campaign for funds for Palestine.

The opposition within the United Palestine Appeal, known as the Committee of Contributors and Workers, has called a conference of its adherents in Atlantic City on Dec. 11 and 12. The five men who resigned from the Appeal took care to say that they avoided taking sides in that split. The annual fund-raising campaign of the Appeal is scheduled to start the end of January.

For months, Mr. Montor and his subordinates on the paid staff of the Appeal had been urging reorganization of the administrative board of the Appeal to give 50 per cent representation to the local welfare groups that contributed the Appeal's funds. Mr. Weisman said the executive committee of the Appeal had offered to give local welfare funds one-third representation, but that the opposition showed no spirit of cooperation and compromise.

The opposition also alleged the policy of the Appeal, as revealed in how it distributed its funds among organizations in Palestine, was dominated by the Zionist Organization of America. In substantiation of this, they said the executive committee of the Appeal has selected Harry Shapiro, executive director of the Zionist Emergency Council, as successor to Mr. Montor.

"Despite an invitation to the welfare funds for consultation of broadening the representation of the United Palestine Appeal," Mr. Seeve and his four associates said in their letter to Mr. Weisman, "the small executive committee of the UPA precipitated a decision in one of the most vital aspects of administration."

A spokesman for the dissidents said the executive committee had feared to call a meeting of the board of directors of the Appeal since last spring.

"At the insistence of the president of the Zionist Organization of America," the letter continued, "they rushed through appointment of an executive director whose primary qualification for this post, regardless of his abilities, is abiding loyalty and indebtedness to leaders of the ZOA. This action was taken without reference to the UPA's board of directors or to the welfare funds, and in spite of our warnings that this appointment would confirm the charges as to the political character of the UPA.

"This was done also in ruthless

Children Enter New World

The first sixty-three children to enter the United States under the displaced persons act of 1948 celebrated the election of President Truman as "the man who brought us to America." The children, all of whom are orphans, played before the large election score-board decorating the wall of the main recreation hall of their American reception center, at 661 Caldwell Avenue, in the Bronx, New York, waiting to be placed in adoption or in foster homes throughout the country.

The placing is to be done by religious agencies of their own faiths—the Catholic Committee for Refugee Children, the National Lutheran Council, the European Jewish Children's Aid and the Church World Service. However, it was the United States Committee for the Care of European Children, Inc., that sponsored the children's arrival aboard the Army transport, General Black.

Some of the children wore new clothing issued by the committee. The entire group had travelled to downtown Manhattan for X-rays. This trip introduced them to the New York subway system. In one terminal, a young immigrant paused before a chewing-gum machine. He inserted a penny and out popped a stick of gum. "America — it's wonderful!" he said enthusiastically.

Laughter, music and shouts sounded from the recreation hall as the future citizens swatted balls across a ping-pong table, played harmonicas, listened to the radio and lined up at an impromptu snack-bar filled with pastries.

Frequently the telephone in the office of Jacob Reingold, center director, would ring with another request from an American couple for "a baby to adopt." Actually, the youngest immigrant is an 8-year-old Lithuanian girl.

Representatives of the religious agencies were interviewing some of the children. Others, who were not at play, studied the English language in a classroom on the second floor. Some visited in each other's rooms, solemnly looking at the Old World photographs of dead or lost parents that a few of the children had managed to salvage.

The sixty-three children came from Russia, the Ukraine, Poland, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Latvia and Esthonia, but more recently from displaced persons camps in Germany.

There was 14-year-old Alexsander from Stalino, in the Ukraine, a small, pale boy with an old face. In 1937, his mother had been deported to Russia. In 1947, his father had died in a Nazi work camp in Germany. "All I want in this world, is to have a family and go to school," the boy said on arrival at the reception center.

Also desirous of American schooling was a group of eight brothers and sisters, including two sets of twins, from Czechoslovakia. They range in age from 9 to 19 years. The boys, handsome and quaint in the way of the Old World, wore the traditional "payes" or side-curls of the Orthodox Hebrew. Their mother and two youngest sisters had been murdered by the Nazis in the gas chambers at Auschitz, former German extermination camp. The children's father also was understood to have perished in a Nazi camp.

LIGHT FOR SIGHT

Daylight is to be preferred to any type of artificial light, and health experts agree that much can be done to make most rooms more suitably lighted for close work. Windows should be as near the ceiling as possible and curtain and blind arrangements should be placed so as to diffuse the light throughout the entire room. Buff, translucent shades help and the cleanliness of walls and ceilings is important in maintaining maximum reflection value of their surfaces.

CHANGES TO HEBREW NAME, FORGETS IT

Since establishment last May of the State of Israel, thousands of its citizens have changed their names, adopting their Hebrew equivalents, thereby complicating life for bill-collectors and tax-gatherers. For example, Joseph Goldberg becomes Yosef Har-Zahal, or Joseph of the Hill of Gold.

The trend to Hebrew names [illegible] a problem for many [illegible] the legal [illegible] do it is done by registering the new signature and paying a fee of about $1, with no charge to soldiers. In Jerusalem, the Jewish community has set up a committee of Hebrew scholars to help the new citizens find appropriate names.

A pay-off on this name-changing occurred in one of the key Government offices. The director general of one Ministry, who had recently undergone his patronymic transformation, found himself plagued by phone calls addressing a name he could not recognize. With mounting impatience, he kept replying, "Wrong number, wrong number, get off the wire," etc., and he was [illegible] repeatedly asked [illegible] Finally he queried, "It's been me all the time?"

Social Notes — Montreal

(Additional Montreal Social Notes On Pages Two And Three)

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph A. Gardner, 934 Wilder Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their only son, Charles Joseph, who was called to the Reading of the Law at Adath Israel Synagogue. He is the brother of Lee, aged three; and grandson of Mrs. H. Silver, of Los Angeles, Calif., who was there, and the late H. Silver, of Miami Beach, Florida; and of Mrs. L. B. Gardner, Victoria Avenue, and the late Joseph Gardner. Mr. and Mrs. Nat. Galsin, Decarie Boulevard, are the godparents. Mr. and Mrs. Gardner received one hundred and thirty-five guests at kiddush at the synagogue, after the services. Mesdames C. H. Shapiro and Charles Benjomin, cousins of Charles Joseph; Miss Stella Gardner of Toronto, Ont., and Miss Ida Gardner, his aunts, were in charge of serving. The table was adorned with roses and chrysanthemums, arranged with oak leaves.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lipsey, Laval Avenue, entertained at a dinner dance, with over one hundred guests, in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary, at Beth Yehuda Synagogue. Mrs. Lipsey wore a turquoise-blue crepe dinner gown, with a pink feather hat, matching gloves, a corsage of pink carnations, at the waist, and an heirloom gold chain and watch given to her by her father. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Lipsey were their sons-in-law and daughters: Dr. and Mrs. M. Goldenberg, McLynn Avenue, the latter wearing a burnt-orange-colored crepe dinner gown, trimmed with beads, with gold accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses; Mr. and Mrs. A. Richter, Laval Avenue, the latter in a black crepe dinner gown, black sequin hat, with veil, and a corsage of red roses; Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Wiseberg, McEachran Avenue, the latter wearing a burnt-orange-coloured taffeta dinner gown, trimmed with rhinestones, and with gold-coloured accessories; a crown of yellow roses in her hair; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Codas, Edward Charles Avenue, the latter wearing a black crepe dinner gown, with a white embroidered top, black and silver accessories, and a crown of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Lipsey have ten grandchildren: Ruth Linda, Brenda Carol, and David Usher Goldenberg, Myron and Simon Richter, Shayne, Marilyn, Rosalie and Allen Wineberg, and Joel William Codas. There was entertainment. Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Eddie Jacobs, a niece, of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Moffat, cousins, of New York; and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schneider, of l'Epiphanie.

Entertaining for Miss Gilda Shirley Fried, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Fried, 622 McEachran Avenue, whose marriage to Alec Freedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Freedman, 5890 Park Avenue, takes place on December 5; and for Miss Pauline Shapiro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Shapiro, 6560 Durocher Avenue, whose marriage to Samuel Fried, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Fried, takes place on January 23, Mrs. Harry B. Fried entertained at teas on two successive days. The first day, Miss Fried, wore a black crepe dress, and Miss Shapiro, a black and copper-shaded iridescent taffeta dress. Mrs. D. Freedman and Miss Evelyn Fried poured in the afternoon, and Mrs. S. Shulman, of Cornwall, Ont., and Miss Sally Freeman, in the evening. On the second occasion, Miss Fried wore a brown crepe dress, and Miss Shapiro wore a bronze-shaded iridescent taffeta dress. The brides-elect poured. There were seasonal floral decorations. Miss Fried and Mr. Freedman, and Miss Shapiro and Mr. Fried, were entertained at a cocktail party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Singerman, Dornal Avenue, followed by dinner-dancing at the Normandie Roof, by: Mr. and Mrs. Singerman, Mr. and Mrs. Colin Spiegel, Mr. and Mrs. I. Reinhart, Mr. and Mrs. A. Reinhart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sacks, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sacks, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Zabitsky. Miss Fried and Miss Shapiro were entertained at a tea presentation, with about forty guests present, by Mrs. M. Fried, St. Joseph Boulevard West, grandmother of Miss Fried, and of Samuel Fried, fiance of Miss Shapiro. The brides-elect were presented with silver flatware.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Karovitch, Henri Julien Street, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their only son, Morris, who was called to the Reading of the Law at Beth Yehuda Synagogue. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Cooper, of Montreal; and of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kling, Clark Street; and godson of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Needle, Henri Julien Street. Bercovitch, Mr. and Mrs. George Richstone, and Mr. and Mrs. Abe Tessler, all cousins; Mrs. Fanny Frank and Mr. and Mrs. I. Kahansky, the grandparents. They were followed by Edward and Joseph carrying the talith; then Benjamin, then Mr. and Mrs. Louis Frank and Mayer. The men carried flags, and the women, candles, which they used to light the candles on the bar-mitzvah cake. Rabbi L. Kramer, of the Lubavitch Yeshiva, who was there with Mrs. Kramer, made a speech; and Mayer spoke in Yiddish and in English.

I WANT TO KNOW . . .
Does a Mother need Insurance?
Unless a husband and father is very well-to-do his wife should have her own insurance policy. If a mother dies when there are no funds available to pay a housekeeper, the home may be broken up and the children put out for adoption or sent to relatives.
The answer is, "Yes, a mother needs life insurance."

Moses Levy & Isaac Hart trustees for building the Syna- £149.0.6

Naph Hart"

Other appeals sent to fellow Jews in Jamaica, Curacao, Surinam and London met with helpful responses. So on August 1, 1759, they broke ground by laying six cornerstones that the honors might be shared by six of its leading eager and enthusiastic subscribers, Aaron Lopez, Jacob Rodrigues Rivera, Naphtali bar Moshe, Isaac bar Eliezer, Isaac bar Moshe and Naphtali bar Isaac.

In the meantime, they had sent abroad for bricks and 196,715 arrived and were paid for August 25, 1760, and the building proceeded apace. The Reverend Andrew Burnbay, an English divine travelling through "the Middle Settlements in North America" passing through Newport at this period, saw the building going on and wrote, "It will be extremely elegant within when completed, but the outside is totally spoilt by a school which the Jews would have annexed to it for the education of their children."

My friend Rabbi Morris A. Gutstein has unearthed in the archives of the Newport Historical Society an account book of the firm of Naphtaly Hart & Company, who evidently acted as treasurer or financial agents for the congregation during the building . . .

As always happens, funds ran short and the congregation had again to appeal for help to their New York brethren:

"Newport 6th April 1761.

Gentlemen

It is a matter of much Concern to the Congregation in this Town among whom I have the Honor to preside as Parnass (President) for the Current year that they are Necessitated again to Supplicate the Charitable assistance of your Congregation who have already Chearfully & Generously Contributed towards finishing our Synagogue — Greatly disappointed in their Expectations from the Charity of other Congregations and the Cost of Building Rising to much more than it was Conceiv'd it would they now find themselves (unless in some way assisted by Other Congregations) unable to Compleat the Building — I do therefore by their Request intreat your good offices to Obtain the farther assistance of your Congregation towards compleating the Same, either by a free will offering to be made in your Synagogue which to them Seems the most unexceptionable way or in any other method wch you shall judge the most agreable to Obtain the good purposes Intended — the Congregation here Confidantly Relying on your Good Endeavours and the Zeal of your Congregation to promote so Charitable & useful an undertaking have no doubt but in due time I shall Receive your favourable Answer hereunto—

Wishing you and Each of your Congregation Length of Days with much Felicity, I have the Honor Gentlemen to Subscribe

Your Obedient Servant

Naph Hart"

The work went on apace and they continued to solicit friends for furniture and ornaments such as the following:

"Messrs Joseph Simson & Samuel Judah

Newport July 25th 1762.

Gentl./

As we have now contracted with Workmen, who are actually at Work, to compleat the Hechal (the ark, or recess, in the synagogue in which the Holy Scrolls of the Law are kept), Tebah (the reading platform in synagogue), & Benches of our Synagogue, are in great hopes same will be furnished by Rosasanah (Rosh ha-Shana — or New Year): We are getting ready such furniture & Utensills as are needful, for which reason our Mahamad (the 'standing committee' or body of trustees) desires me to address this to you, Gentlemen, that you will be so kind as to make enquiry, who made any offerings of Furniture & Ornaments towards this pious undertaking, to receive & forward the same to us with convenient speed; that it may be here ready against the Time of Consecrating the holy Fabrick.

The gratefull sence we have of the Liberal assistance of your K.K. will put us in mind, of giving timely notice of the Dedication Day, that those Gentlemen who please to favor us with their Company may not be disappointed. Underneath I note what offerings came to our notice, if there be any more we leave to your enquiry, not douting your Zeal in so Laudable cause.

You will always find in me a ready complyance to whatever Services I can render you, either in my publick or private capacity; wishing you health & prosperity I conclude respectfully

Your very hum. Servt.

Moses Lopez

Parnas

(President)"

This produced, "a Tamid" ("Continual," the Perpetual Lamp burning in front of the Ark in the synagogue) from Mr. Samuel Judah, some candlesticks for the "Hechal" (the Ark, or recess, in the synagogue in which the Holy Scrolls of the Law are kept) and the "Tebah" (the reading platform in synagogue) from Mr. Samuel Hart.

In the meantime, in 1759, the Reverend Isaac de Abraham Touro, educated as a rabbi in the famous academies of Europe, came to settle in Newport and became the chazan (a reader of the prayers who conducts the service) of the congregation.

At last, December 2, 1763, the day arrived to dedicate the synagogue. The Reverend Ezra Stiles, destined to become Yale's third president, then the settled Congregational minister at Newport, records the events of that great occasion as he for the first time saw the new building:

"In the Afternoon was the dedication of the new Synagogue in this Town. It began by a handsome procession in which were carried the Books of the Law, to be deposited in the Ark. Several Portions of Scripture, & of their Service with a Prayer for the Royal Family, were read and finely sung by the priest & People. There were present many Gentlemen & Ladies. The Order and Decorum, the Harmony & Solemnity of the Musick, together with a handsome Assembly of People, in a Edifice the most perfect of the Temple kind perhaps in America, & splendidly illuminated, could not but raise in the Mind a faint Idea of the Majesty & Grandeur of the Ancient Jewish Worship mentioned in Scripture.

"Dr. Isaac de Abraham Touro performed the Service. The Synagogue is about perhaps fourty foot long & 30 wide, of Brick on a Foundation of free Stone; it was begun about two years ago, & is now finished except the Porch & the Capitals of the Pillars. The Front representation of the holy of holies, or its Partition Veil, consists only of wainscotted Breast Work on the East End, in the lower part of which four long Doors cover an upright Square Closet the depth of which is about a foot or the thickness of the Wall, & in this Apartment (vulgarly called the Ark), were deposited three Copies & Rolls of Pentateuch, written on Vellum or rather tanned Calf Skin; one of these Rolls I was told by Dr. Touro was presented from Amsterdam & is Two Hundred years old, the Letters have the Rabbinical Flourishes.

"A Gallery for the Women runs round the whole Inside, except the East End, supported by Columns of Ionic order, over which are placed correspondent Columns of the Corinthian order supporting the Ceiling of the Roof. The Depth of the Corinthian Pedestal is the height of the Balustrade which runs round the Gallery. The Pulpit for Reading the Law, is a Raised Pew with an extended front table; this placed about the center of the Synagogue or nearer the West End, being a Square embalustraded Comporting with the Length of the Indented Chancel before & at the Foot of the Ark.

"On the middle of the North Side & Affixed to the Wall is a raised Seat for the Parnas or Ruler, & for the Elders; the Breast and Back interlaid with Chinese Mosaic Work. A Wainscotted Seat runs around Side of the Synagogue below, & another in the Gallery. There are no other Seats or pews. There may be Eighty Souls of Jews or 15 families now in Town. The Synagogue has already cost Fifteen Hundred Pounds Sterling. There are to be five Lamps pendant from a lofty Ceiling."

Experts have been able to trace the architectural books which Harrison used from which he copied details and designs for the building. Professor Henry Russel Hitchcock, of Wesleyan University, describes the architecture, "upon an interior of the type of the Amsterdam synagogues of the previous century Harrison lavished the resources of English Palladian design, copying the galleries from Jones' Whitehall banqueting hall, other details from Gibbs, and the Ark of the Covenant from Langley & Kent."

I know of no picture or book of the Amsterdam synagogue then published accessible to Harrison. I rather surmise that the interior was not a copy of any one synagogue, but rather followed a traditional type commonly in use, with variations, at that period amongst Jews, equally made use of in the synagogues of London, Bevis Marks (1701), Dukes Place (1722), as in those of Amsterdam. Possibly Harrison had seen these London synagogues.

In an article in the American Hebrew (April 11, 1919), Albert S. Gottlieb, a distinguished Jewish architect, points out that the Newport synagogue "has not a trace of the religion of the occupants." Still, it merits the praise of Professor Hitchcock that "as a characteristic work of the international Academic reaction of the mid-eighteenth century in a rather unusual field it would be of unique distinction in any country in the world." He pronounces Temple Jeshuath Israel "altogether Harrison's masterpiece." Today the main entrance does not face the street and the building does not align itself with the sidewalk and streets in the vicinity. It is suggested that the general direction of Touro Street, in the course of years, has been changed. The street entrance is through a small stone gateway erected by Abraham Touro, flanked by two pillars supposedly copied from the Temple of King Solomon.

With the capture of Newport by the British in 1776, the great days of the synagogue were over. On the whole, the Newport Jews were ardently patriotic in the Revolutionary cause, so that those who were not enlisted actively in the patriotic cause fled the approach of the enemy. Many never returned to Newport and that city never again regained its importance as a seaport and commercial center.

During the British occupancy, the synagogue had been closed. After the evacuation, the buildings of the town were so damaged that it is said that the General Assembly of Rhode Island made use of the synagogue for a time as its meeting place. In 1781 it was used for a Town Meeting.

At the close of the eighteenth century the congregation had so fallen away that services ceased. In his recollections of Newport, Channing described this sad situa-

UEFB MOBILIZES TO GIVE BRITAIN STRENGTH

. . . IN COLD WAR TO WIN THE PEACE

REASON FOR UEFB

By centralizing buying and transportation, including delivery at destination, substantial savings can be effected. The scattered efforts of many can be channelled into an efficient single stream of relief, without a loss of individuality as to persons, groups or organizations.

More Aid Per Dollar

For example: the cost of placing a ready packaged 10 lb. parcel in the hands of a recipient in Britain, exclusive of content purchase price, is approximately $1.50 at present, whereas through UEFB concessions the comparable cost would be 57c to 79c. This economy does not include the very substantial saving which bulk purchasing effects.

The gallant people of Britain are suffering today because they are determined to win the cold war. They are the only nation in Europe fighting with body and mind to vanquish the spectre that haunts the Old World.

Their health is being weakened, their efficiency impaired, by the tremendous restrictions they have imposed upon themselves. They stand in danger of being defeated by undernourishment.

Why? Because Britain imports four-fifths less goods than before the war, yet exports more than half as much again as in 1939.

UEFB offers the best means of making your aid to Britain effective now.

UEFB is a voluntary organization set up to collect, forward and distribute aid to the undernourished people of Britain. UEFB purchases supplies in bulk. EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

by Don Graham

If you worry about the impression you make on other people, remember this: You are really important to a large number of people!

Yes, almost everyone you meet and associate with depends on you to support their self-confidence in some way. Even those who seem "high hat" and independent really want to earn your favourable opinion.

Here are some ways to make yourself even more important to others:

1. Be a good listener. Go out of your way to express appreciation of what the other fellow says and does.

2. If he is your superior, show due respect. If an assistant, encourage him and let him know that you value his services.

3. Never belittle the ability or accomplishments of others. Be a booster.

4. Don't contradict, even if you are right. State your facts or opinions in some indirect way.

By following these hints you will enjoy better personal relations wherever you are. And this, in turn, will do wonders for your own self-confidence!

To his family, a father is the most important person in the world. And since the family depends on him for their financial support, the typical Canadian father protects his family with life insurance.

PASSPORT TO NOWHERE: THE STORY OF A GREAT TRUCK DRIVER

By Gertrude Samuels, Of The International Children's Emergency Fund

This is the story of Hirsch Schwartzberg and his "passport to nowhere" — the story of the last remnants of Jewish Displaced Persons who have moved from tragedy to tragedy, outcast and forgotten.

I met Schwartzberg at Dueppel Displaced Persons camp. He had, figuratively, just been handed his "passport to nowhere" — a transfer from one DP camp to another. A mountain of a man, with a three-day beard and a terrible calm in his eyes and voice, he was helping the officials move the DP's of Dueppel and of adjoining Mariendorf camp- men, women and the children born here—to other camps in the Western zone. And over the gray and rotting barracks, which are soon to become a "boys' town" for German youth, over the noise of trucks and children, hung the same terrible calm—and dread.

The DP's milled before the temporary wooden platform near the Jewish Welfare Center with its Star of David, helmeted constabulary moving quietly among them to keep order. Army trucks backed up to the platform as an official called the DP's forward — the Abrahams, the Bezalas, the Daniels, nearly all from Poland — loaded them and drove off to Tempelhof Airfield. More trucks carried the 200-pound lots of baggage allowed for each DP -other possessions, hopefully accumulated, had gone for a song to German buyers outside the camps. Schwartzberg stamped this and that, signed his name to "character references." He found time for all their questions, though he didn't know the answers.—"Where are we going?" "How long will it take?" "Will we meet again?"

We still had time. For Schwartzberg was the last man out of the camp he himself had established over two years ago.

To follow the story of how Schwartzberg got to nowhere, one must begin with the year 1941 and Vilna, where he lived with his wife, Rebecca, and his 5-year-old son, Jacob.

That year, the Gestapo killed his father, sister and brother, killed every member of his wife's family, and took the surviving Schwartzbergs to Vilna ghetto. There were 60,000 Jews in the ghetto — just one of many areas marked for death by the Nazis in Lithuania and Poland. Three million Polish Jews alone were rounded up in preparation for death by firing squads, starvation and furnaces. In the Vilna ghetto, the Germans indexed them according to yellow and white cards, or what the Jews soon called "Leben" (life) or "Tod" (death) cards. Because Schwartzberg had been a truck driver, they had use for him in the "schwarzarbeiter" — among the "black workers" doing construction, forest work and ditch digging.

By 1944, only 20,000 of the original 60,000 Jews of the Vilna ghetto were alive; only an estimated 80,000 Polish Jews out of the 3,000,000 survived. For all Europe, 1,500,000 survived out of the pre-war Jewish population of 7,500,000.

"Nobody," reflects Schwartzberg, "will believe that we have suffered so much."

There were only ninety children left in Vilna ghetto when the Nazis ordered a special killing of children. Schwartzberg clawed out the wood and bricks under the window of his room, deep enough to hold a child's body, clothed Jacob fully as protection against the weather, and put him inside the hole. Sixty children were killed in the pogrom. For four months, Jacob lived and ate in his hide-out, coming out late at night to stretch and play. As Jacob recalls it now, he "couldn't stand it at first and cried, but after I understood what it was for, I stayed quiet and didn't mind."

In 1944, the Nazis decided to liquidate the entire camp, ordering all Jews forward for killing or cremation. With thirty others, Schwartzberg took his wife and son, clambered between the ceiling and roof of their dwelling and lay there for two days. "Just when it seemed quite mad to want to try to go on living," villagers poured in to loot. And the handful of Jews climbed quietly down, one by one, from their hiding place to mix with the looters and go unnoticed out of the ghetto.

The Schwartzbergs got into the city of Vilna—by then in the Lithuania Soviet Socialist Republic. They found nothing left of their old home. When the Government announced that all who had been Polish subjects until 1939 could be registered for repatriation to Poland, Schwartzberg qualified and the family was evacuated to Lodz.

"There I had a friend," explained Schwartzberg. "My boy was growing. We wanted somehow to make another start." The ghetto-slave labor phase had closed. It seemed possible to put down roots again. But post-war Poland still suffered from Hitler's legacy of anti-Semitism and the UNRRA camps in Germany seemed to hold greater safety for those who had miraculously survived Hitler. Thus the Schwartzbergs, suddenly fleeing again, joined that strange, new group for whom the world had to coin a name—Displaced Persons.

There were already hundreds of thousands of the DP's in the Western zone camps in Germany—former Christian nationals of Poland and the Baltic countries, many of whom had been in Germany at the end of the war as slave labor. Surely UNRRA and the American military could let in a few more Jewish survivors: thus Schwartzberg reasoned. Travelling illegally by train and truck with sixteen other Polish Jews, the Schwartzbergs arrived, late in 1945, stateless and penniless, in Berlin.

What followed laid the foundation for Dueppel DP camp. With the help of the Jewish "Gemeinde" (community) of Berlin, an UNRRA camp was set up in a former pavilion at Wannsee. No permission was asked to occupy it. The Jews simply moved in "because it was empty and we needed a floor to sleep on." And they kept coming—"exhausted, bitter, lost, hopeful, even with peace still not knowing where to turn." There were 450 in the original group, including twenty children, and for a few days they lived off bread and rations brought in by a Jewish chaplain. Then they formed a committee to get in touch with the United States Military Government. Schwartzberg, whose ingenuity and patience had become a legend in the ghetto, was elected director.

"General Barker," said Schwartzberg, "came out to the pavilion. He said he couldn't believe that people could exist as we were existing. He said he had no words for our experiences and for what we had managed to do. He said very much more, with words which our people had not heard for years. He would get us help. And he did."

For five months Schwartzberg and his 450 DP's lived in the pavilion. Then on June 10, 1946, the Dueppel camp, formerly training quarters for the German Luftwaffe, was opened for them. Within three days all of them plus another 360 Jewish DP's were moved in, UNRRA and the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee pitching in with workers, food, supplies, advice.

And the DP's began to build what many believed was to be their last way-station. They renamed the camp Herzl, after the founder of Zionism, Theodor Herzl. They hoisted the Star of David. Their hopes were clearly known, at least among themselves. They would go to the "homeland which would welcome them — Palestine — with American help." They again made Schwartzberg their director, and elected a committee of thirteen to run the camp.

Organization went forward under Schwartzberg's direction. First came the hospital—critically needed for those just out of concentration camps.

"It filled up completely at once," said Schwartzberg. "We had five doctors and ten or twelve nurses among our DP's and UNRRA and the Army gave us more help and supplies." Then the place of worship — "crude but adequate, and it filled up, too. Our DP's had a stronge feeling about this camp. They felt lucky. They saw the interest of the Government. They were free to move around. They heard kind words again. They felt lucky and alive."

And so they worked to put down some roots again. They established schools, a registration office, a post office, a search and tracing office for those who still hoped to find relatives, their own police detail. By July, 1946, the population of Dueppel had grown to 10,000 as thousands more Jewish DP's fled to Berlin after the Kielce pogrom in Poland. Another camp, Mariendorf, adjoining Dueppel, was opened and some 5,000 settled in it. A Central Committee of the Liberated Jews in Berlin was established to act in behalf of both camps, again with Schwartzberg directing.

In the hard winter of 1946-47 Schwartzberg scrounged for materials, food and coal. He settled quarrels and moved constantly around the camp; a 200-pound tower of determination and philosophy, he intervened at Military Government courts in behalf of those arrested for black-marketing. "Is it difficult to understand how some can become ill with the mind?" he would gently inquire.

And the DP's loved him. They knew him, not as Hirsch but as Solomon. To them, he symbolized the good and the wise and the understanding. His decisions stood and were respected. He knew there were "good and bad souls" among them — that many had suffered so cruelly that they had turned inward and refused to trust even fellow DP's; that perhaps those, above all, needed protection.

He could speak to them in Yiddish, German, Polish, Russian, Lithuanian. He rarely punished them — "Can you wonder?" His reputation spread beyond Dueppel and Mariendorf to wherever Jews were in trouble. The first words of a sick and homeless DP who had wandered into a Berlin hospital recently were: "Please get word to Schwartzberg at Dueppel camp. He will know what to do."

And his DP's? Who were they?

There was, for instance, Roza Emer, a wide-eyed blonde of 5, born in Lodz, Poland, who escaped to Dueppel with her parents, Laja and Aron. In Block 42, Room 20, there was the Luszcanowski family — mother, father, their 6-year-old daughter, Nusha, from Petrokow, Poland, and the baby, Daniel, born in the camp six months ago. (They had left Nusha, who is fair enough to be "Aryan", with Gentile friends in their native town when they fled before the Nazis, and were reunited after liberation.) There was Samuel Neubauer, who had "been through it all — ghetto, concentration camps, slave labor — watching everyone around me killed but somehow never feeling nervous for myself. But now—now for the first time I am nervous. We do not know what will happen to us. We do not know where we are going. We do not know, three years after the war, what will become of us."

Thus, as they loaded the trucks, as they took down the sign in Hebrew letters below the Star of David — "Give Help to Israel"—as friends bade each other wordless farewells, as they flew out of Berlin to Wiesbaden and Frankfort and then were dispersed to other DP camps in the west of

"Canada Unlimited"

In 1617, Canada's first farmer, Louis Hebert, used a scythe to reap his harvest. Working by hand, he could barely provide enough grain to supply his own family.
The pioneer farmer and his sons, with their one horse, worked long and hard to grow enough food for their own use.
In 1852, farmer Daniel Massey made the first mower in Canada. Later Alanson Harris designed the reaper. Their combined efforts in 1891 helped develop the wheatland of the West.
The introduction, in 1918, of the combine, made it possible to reap and thresh 25 acres a day. Now, one man with modern equipment can cut and thresh 50 acres a day.

It is Canadian people and Canadian machines that prove . . . there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.

SPANISH RICE

one cup rice
one large onion
one can of tomato soup
a pinch of salt and pepper
one and one-half pounds of hamburger steak

Cook rice in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Place in colander and run cold water through it. Mince meat, tomato soup, onion, and seasoning thoroughly. Then mince once more, adding rice, and bake in moderate oven, three hundred and seventy-five degrees for one hour, or cook on top of stove.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

two squares bitter chocolate
one-quarter pound butter
one cup sugar
three-quarters cup flour
two teaspoons baking powder
one teaspoon vanilla
two eggs
one-half cup milk

Melt chocolate and butter. Add to the sugar. Then add eggs, then flour and baking powder sifted together; then milk. Lastly, add vanilla. Butter and flour cake-tin, and bake in a 350-degree oven for three-quarters of an hour. This cake turns out nicely if baked in a jelly-mould, the kind with a hole in the centre, but not in a tin which is as high and narrow as an angel-food cake-tin. For icing, cream one cup of icing sugar into a heaping tablespoon of soft butter. Add cream until it can be easily spread. If preferred, a square of melted chocolate may be added to icing before the cream.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. A. Schwartzman, Duluth Street West, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sylvia, to Milton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sterin, of Revere, Mass., the wedding to take place on Saturday, November 20, at Chevra Shass Synagogue.

200 POLICE TAKE ISRAELI OATH

Over 200 policemen out of the 400 serving in the Jerusalem City Constabulary took the oath of allegiance to the State of Israel at a ceremony held at the former British police parade ground in Jerusalem.

Typically Jewish names of European and oriental character were called out by the Assistant Superintendent, Ezra Mohr, as each man answered, "I swear." The parade was watched by the Minister of Police, Behor Shitreet, and the Inspector-General of Police, Ezekiel Saharov. The parade was commanded by the superintendent of police in the Jerusalem district, Yeshurun Schiff, formerly Mr. Shertok's secretary.

The ceremony began when the blue and white colours were hoisted onto the flagmast, to the sound of bugles. This was followed by a band playing the Hatikvah.

The policemen drilled with a smartness and precision which compared favourably with their counterparts under the British regime. The resemblance was heightened by the many tall and burly blond men, wearing blue visored caps as worn by the British constables.

As the band played the Jewish march, "From Dan to Beer Sheba," the words of which were written by Jabotinsky, the constables swung past the saluting base where Saharov took the salute.

The oath taken by the policemen reads: "I swear to undertake allegiance to the State of Israel, to its laws and to its competent authorities, unconditionally and unreservedly and I accept the discipline of the Israel police and to obey all orders and instructions given by my superior officers and to devote all my strength, and to even sacrifice my life, in the defence of the homeland and freedom of Israel."

NOT READY TO RECOGNIZE ISRAEL

Once again the British Government let it be known that it was not ready to recognize the State of Israel.

In response to questions in the House of Commons, C. P. Mayhew, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, gave the same reply that he has given several times before—that the Government does not consider that the conditions of statehood required by international law have been fulfilled.

"Moreover," Mr. Mayhew added, "while the Palestine problem is still under discussion by the United Nations, His Majesty's Government do not think it right to prejudge the result of these discussions."

Was Head Of Shoe Store Chain

Arthur Adler, fifty-five, president of the Adler Shoe Company, in New York, died after a heart attack while attending a performance of "Love Life" at the West Forty-sixth Street Theater, 226 West Forty-sixth Street. He lived at the Essex House and in Norwalk, Conn.

The play had just begun when Mr. Adler collapsed and slumped in his seat. He was aided to the lobby by the fireman on duty and was pronounced dead upon the arrival of an ambulance from St. Clair's Hospital.

At the West Forty-seventh Street police station, Herbert Adler, vice-president and treasurer of the shoe company, identified his brother and said the latter had been under a doctor's care since suffering a heart attack seven or eight months ago.

Arthur Adler succeeded to the presidency of the firm in 1946 upon the death of his brother, Jesse Adler, who used the radio and such comedians as Henry Morgan to popularize his chain of stores with the refrain "Old Man Adler and his elevator—elevator—elevator—elevator shoes."

The original Adler shoe store at Third Avenue and 125th Street was established forty-four years ago by their father, Jacob Adler. Jesse Adler became president in 1911, and the original enterprise has grown to a chain of twenty stores in the New York City metropolitan area.

Surviving, besides his brother, are his wife, Mrs. Florence Brooks Adler; a son, Richard Adler, and four sisters, Mrs. Milton Lipper, Mrs. Benjamin Linderman, Mrs. Jack Freedman and Mrs. Howard Myers.

SYNAGOGUE AS NATIONAL SHRINE

tion: "Gradually these impressive services subsided, and finally died out; and then the building was left to the bats and moles, and to the occasional invasion, through its porches and windows, of boys who took great pleasure in examining the furniture scattered about."

Still, there were those who loved this noble edifice and when the two sons of Rabbi Touro died, Abraham (1822) and Judah (1854), each left liberal provisions in his will for the care and preservation of the synagogue and the surrounding cemetery.

In addition, Abraham had left $10,000 to the state of Rhode Island "for the purpose of supporting the Jewish synagogue in that state, in special trust, to be appropriated to that object in such manner as the said legislature, together with the municipal authority of the Town of Newport, may from time to time direct and appoint." While another fund of $10,000 under the will of Judah Touro was given to the city of Newport "for the purpose of paying the salary of a reader or minister to officiate in the Jewish synagogue of Newport, Rhode Island, and to endow the ministry of the same, as well as to keep in repair and embellish the Jewish cemetery in Newport aforesaid."

The Legislature of Rhode Island, by appropriate statutes, enacted such laws that today, perhaps, the state of Rhode Island and the city of Newport are the only state and city in the United States which run a Jewish synagogue.

With the coming of the later immigration, Jews again came to Newport and today, in the old synagogue, the ancient and traditional services still resound in this inspiring temple of faith.

It was this congregation which, upon the occasion of Washington's visit to Newport exchanged with him those addresses which have become so famous as classics of American Jewish history.

Recognizing both the historical and artistic importance of this, the oldest synagogue building in the United States, the Department of the Interior, in March, 1946, designated it as a national historical site so that it might be preserved for future generations as an important national monument of the past and the National Park Service charged with its preservation and safekeeping.

Title to the synagogue will still be held by the Congregation Sherith Israel of New York, which became guardian of the ancient structure and its burying grounds where so many of the ancestors of its early members had worshipped and were buried after the evil days of decay fell upon post-Revolutionary Newport. The Congregation Jeshuath Israel will continue its use of the building for religious services.

Psychotherapist Was Shakespeare Expert, Handwriting Authority

Dr. Samuel Aaron Tannenbaum, seventy-five, psychotherapist whose avocational interest in Shakespeare gained him eminence as an authority on the playwright's work, died at his home, 601 West 113th Street, New York.

Dr. Tannenbaum was born in Hungary, and came to America in 1886, when he was twelve. He attended City College and obtained his medical degree in 1898 from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University.

After his graduation from medical school, Dr. Tannenbaum apportioned his time to the study of medicine and of sixteenth and early seventeenth century literature. He was among the country's first psychoanalysts, and gained recognition as a student of general Elizabethan literature and as a handwriting expert, as well as a Shakespearean scholar.

He wrote more than 200 articles and fifty-seven books on Shakespeare and on other authors' of the Elizabethan period, and wrote extensively on psychoanalysis as well. He had been editor of several publications devoted to Shakespeare, philology and psychology, among them "The Shakespeare Association Bulletin," "The Journal of Sexology and Psychoanalysis" and "Psyche and Eros."

As a result of his literary research, Dr. Tannenbaum's study of the seven extant signatures of Shakespeare led him to propose that the name should be spelled "Shakspere."

Arguments that Shakespeare could not have written his plays on the ground that his poor handwriting indicated absence of intellectual capacity led Dr. Tannenbaum to a general study of Elizabethan penmanship. His examination led to a report that the normal style of writing then was virtually indecipherable and that Shakespeare, by comparison, wrote legibly.

Dr. Tannenbaum's specialized knowledge of Elizabethan handwriting resulted in his becoming an expert on general handwriting, and he was summoned many times to courts in New York and New Jersey to testify in civil suits involving the authenticity of signatures.

His opinions were frequently sought by other scholars and teachers of literature. Dr. Tannenbaum himself gave many lectures on Shakespearean literature, including appearances at the University of Chicago, Columbia University and City College. He had been a regular lecturer on Shakespeare in the evening division of Hunter College.

A champion of socialized medicine for many years, Dr. Tannenbaum collaborated with Paul Maerker Branden on a critique of modern medical practices entitled "The Patient's Dilemma." It was published in 1935.

Dr. Tannenbaum's interest in the psychology of Shakespeare played no little part in his embracing psychotherapy as his field in medicine, although he was first a general practitioner. Dr. Tannenbaum followed an independent method in his psychoanalysis, not following closely any methods of the Viennese schools. He retired from practice last year.

He was a founder of the magazine "Psyche and Eros," and had the co-operation of several European psychoanalysts including William Stakel, of Vienna. He translated Mr. Stakel's work, "The Depths of the Soul."

Books written by Dr. Tannenbaum include: "The Psychology of Accidents," published in 1924; "Problems of Shakespeare's Penmanship," 1927; "The Assassination of Christopher Marlowe," 1928; "Shakespeare and Sir Thomas Moore," 1929; "The Handwriting of the Renaissance," 1930; "Christopher Marlowe—A Concise Bibliography," 1937; "Was William Shakespeare a Gentleman?" 1932; "Ben Jonson — A Concise Bibliography," 1938. Dr. Tannenbaum also edited many editions of works by Shakespeare and other Elizabethan playwrights and poets. His medical articles included contributions to the "Journal of Abnormal Psychology."

In 1932, Dr. Tannenbaum received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from Lehigh University. He was a member of the New York County Medical Society and the Shakespeare Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Rosenzweig Tannenbaum; a son, Dr. Herman Tannenbaum; two sisters, Mrs. Eva Gottsegen and Mrs. Ethel Reich, and two brothers, Alfred Tannenbaum and Louis Tannenbaum.

Two blinded veterans of the Israeli Army were welcomed to New York by Mayor William O'Dwyer. The veterans, David Weiss, twenty-one, and Meir Palsi, twenty-five, have come to the United States at the invitation of the American League for a Free Palestine, which will provide funds for their medical treatment. The two young fighters were accompanied by their nurse, Miss Malca Haroon, twenty-four, a native of Palestine, who was wounded assisting the Israeli forces in a skirmish during the battle for Jaffa.

PREGNANCY POINTERS

The popular belief that dental treatment cannot be administered during pregnancy is unfounded, dental experts say. Healthy teeth are particularly important at this time. The teeth should be checked early in pregnancy because the patient is more comfortable during treatment at that time. The third to the seventh month is considered the best time for a dental checkup. Adequate diet during pregnancy will help ensure healthy teeth for both mother and baby.

Germany — the future remained uncertain.

Most of them have their hearts set on Palestine. Many, like Schwartzberg, are registered for the United States; the underlying hope is to leave Germany forever. Schwartzberg summed it up this way:

"I have three emotions left. One is concerned with the liquidation of this camp; another is that perhaps it is lucky for our people to be moving out of this very troubled area, though they are going to other camps. The third is for my wife and son. We do not know where we will go. Everything is uncertain again. We must wait," he said calmly—"for instructions."

Judah Magnes — A Tribute

A whole-hearted and noble man who in our day walked with God and for whom not only all Israel but mankind mourns was Judah Magnes, a truly great man, who died recently. What are the qualities, the standards, by which we measure the stature of true nobility? Spiritual power or moral idealism is the first essential. Then comes mental power. Next a capacity for human leadership. Lastly, an individual to be numbered among the greatest must serve his fellow-men.

Judah Magnes was born in San Francisco in 1877. He was ordained Rabbi in 1898 at the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati. Already in his student days he proved to be a gallant figure and a pioneer. Post-graduate work Judah Magnes pursued in Germany and he travelled extensively in Poland and Galicia, seeking out his fellow-Jews. Because of these travels and his studies, there was born within him the conviction of Zionism and the need for the restoration of the Jewish people to its ancestral home in Palestine. Thus on his return to America when Zionism was far from fashionable in the early nineteen hundreds, Judah Magnes became one of the greatest exponents of the cause of Zion.

For four years from 1906 to 1910, he ministered at Temple Emanu-El, New York, and multitudes were lifted to nobler heights by his eloquence and by his dynamic leadership. He, like unto all the great, loved the masses and he identified himself with the cause of the common people. Thus it was that he loved to be among the Jews of the East Side of New York. He even learned Yiddish and became as eloquent in Yiddish as in English.

Judah Magnes was the first to organize meetings of mourning and protest against Czaristic Russia which persecuted its Jews. It was he who led the first great protest parade through Fifth Avenue, New York, in those mournful days of 1907 pogroms when so many Jews suffered at the hands of the Russian barbarians. Magnes was instrumental in raising funds for the purpose of supporting the societies of self-protection which arose within Russia.

In 1917, when the United States of America moved into war, it was again this gallant personality who dedicated himself to the cause of pacifism and called upon the people to refuse to lift arms for the purpose of killing fellow man. He was a genuine apostle of peace and all through his life championed the cause of a warless world. Only once he relented in his pacifism and that was at the time when Hitler resolved to exterminate Israel. So great was his love for peace and so passionately did he pursue it that he could only see salvation for Palestine on terms of co-operation between Jew and Arab. That is why he had a dream of Palestine becoming a bi-national Jewish state.

Of course, we feel that in this regard he was in error. Nevertheless, with deep respect and admiration we have come to recognize his view regarding Eretz Israel which under present circumstances, from our point of view, is unrealistic. Indeed, Magnes like unto Ghandi, firmly held to the conviction that the greatest law in the universe is the law of love by which man can live decently and honourably.

Judah Magnes will be remembered for having espoused those causes which for the most part were unpopular and yet great causes, nevertheless. Thus he saw in Socialism a great hope for the improvement of the lot of the common man, the laborer and the toiler. In this movement, he saw an instrument which will make possible the removal of the exploitation of masses by classes. His friends were not happy that this teacher in Israel sought the fellowship of the socialists, we mean his friends in positions of comfort and security. But they admired, nevertheless, Judah Magnes because they came to realize that here was a man of great moral stature and a genuine prophetic leader in Israel.

Judah Magnes too, will be remembered for having pioneered in organizing Jewish communal life in the great city of New York. It was he who brought the Kehilla into existence in the great city of America. Because of this Kehilla many subsidiary organizations in the cause of Jewish education and social service came into being in New York. However, the Kehilla broke up because Judah Magnes would not compromise and would not dissociate himself from those causes which were not to the liking of the rich and those possessed of means.

For a while Judah Magnes was identified with The Society For The Advancement Of Judaism. He sought a more positive expression of Jewish life in terms of Jewish tradition and worked energetically in the cause of making Jews realize that they are at the best when they are themselves and are not mere imitators of the Goyim. To him American Israel is greatly indebted for having lifted the standards of Jewish culture in the United States and for having given to the Jew self-respect and self-reverence.

However, Magnes, disappointed in Western civilization, turned eastward and spiritually found sanctuary in the Holy Land. Thus, in 1922, he settled in Palestine and dedicated his life to the cause of building the Hebrew University on Mount Scopus. It was his genius and inspiration that brought together great Jewish scholars from the ends of the earth to Mount Scopus and it was his guiding spirit through the past twenty-six years that made the Hebrew University one of the great intellectual centers and scientific centers of the world. In Palestine Judah Magnes experienced also stormy days but he held on zealously and passionately to his convictions and to his moral idealism.

He looked to the Hebrew University as the bridge between the mystic East and the mechanistic West. He also saw in the Hebrew University the instrumentality by which to build comradeship between Arab and Jew. Thus, he was a devotee of that department of the University known as the School for Oriental Scholarship; thus, too, he was vitally interested in that department of the University known as the School of Jewish Studies. Judah Magnes, through his dynamic leadership and his co-operation with the Hadassah, did much to further the cause of the new school of medicine in connection with the University which we hope will be dedicated May next when Israel will observe its first anniversary of statehood.

Indeed, Magnes of Mount Scopus has written a glorious chapter all its own and the story of the rebirth of Jewish Palestine. We think of the Hebrew University not only in terms of its fine buildings and its great scholars. We think of the Hebrew University in terms of the personality of Judah Magnes who, despite all rivalries between factions in the new Jewish state, was ever looked upon as the great moral authority residing in Jerusalem.

Judah Magnes might have been one of the great leaders of the new Jewish state had he wished to compromise, but his convictions were holy and sacred and he was never guilty of selling out principle. As a great moral leader he chose to break with friends rather than to negate principle. He will be remembered as one of the greatest of Jews of modern times and one who served with honour and devotion his people and the cause of humanity. May God bless and hallow the memory of Judah Leon Magnes.

ver, and when he was twenty-one went to work for David May, who had just opened the May & Co. department store in Denver.

Mr. Ittleson advanced rapidly in the May organization and was finally made merchandise manager of a May store in St. Louis. By that time, however, he had become completely interested in the financing aspects of merchandising, and its place in the distribution setup.

He wondered why the system of factoring, in the textile industry, could not be extended to other businesses. With the consent of the May company, he resigned. In 1908 he founded the Commercial Credit and Investment Company, of St. Louis.

The company was founded on $100,000 capital to advance funds and to engage in industrial and mercantile financing. The company was soon operating in most of the large industrial cities of the East, and, in 1915, its main office was transferred to New York.

About this time, too, Mr. Ittleson began the installment and wholesale financing of automobiles and trucks. During World War I, Mr. Ittleson served as a dollar-a-year man in Washington, and after the war he returned to his idea of installment buying. Under a plan sponsored by a number of automobile manufacturers, the network of his company's offices spread across the United States and Canada. Installment buying drove up the sales of automobiles, and the sales of automobiles helped installment buying. That plan made no small contribution to America's system of mass production and sale of automobiles.

Mr. Ittleson expanded the scope of his organization then into the field of household appliances and durable goods financing.

His company, in the late 1920's, began to buy a series of oldtime factoring houses, combining them into three C. I. T.-owned companies — Commercial Factors Corporation, Meinhard Greef & Co., Inc., and William Iselin & Co., Inc. The Universal Credit Company, affiliated with the Ford Motor Company, was purchased in 1932, and in 1936 the National Surety Company, the nation's second largest surety and bonding company. In 1939 the Service Fire Insurance Corporation of New York was added.

Mr. Ittleson also had made many contributions to charities and public organizations. He established, in 1932, the Ittleson Family Foundation, for non-sectarian charitable purposes, and it had made contributions to many causes.

He was former chairman of the board of the Federation of Jewish Charities of New York, honorary chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and a member of the executive committee of the American Jewish Committee. He had been active in the Greater New York Fund and was a contributor to the Religious Counsellors Interfaith Fund.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Blanche Frank Ittleson, and two sons, Lee F. Ittleson and Henry Ittleson jr., executive vice-president of the C. I. T.

nent and permanent fact." Second, he asked that the U. N. secure an end to hostilities and an immediate proclamation of peace. Finally, he advocated that the U. N. "affirm the desirability of direct negotiations between the parties as the only method of settling their differences, but avoiding any General Assembly commitment on territorial questions."

Concerning the report of Dr. Bunche, acting U. N. Palestine mediator, Mr. Eban said: "It is the business of the Assembly to work for peace and not for far-fetched territorial improvisations, which dominate the mediator's report. With every week that passes, our resistance to that report grows more determined."

Final determination of frontiers between Israel and its neighbors, he asserted, was "a proper matter for negotiations between Israel and its neighbors." He added: "We have sought such negotiations in the past. Whatever the United Nations can do to encourage such negotiations will represent a powerful contribution to the cause of peace."

Mr. Eban spoke to 250 delegates and observers from Jewish welfare organizations and communities in twenty-three countries attending the opening session of the first international Jewish relief conference. Sponsored by the American Joint Distribution Committee, the six-day conference was to study the needs and future prospects of the 1,500,000 Jews who survived the war in Europe.

disregard for the unanimous decision of a representative nominations committee and over the protest of the representatives of the Labor Zionist movement."

Mr. Weisman said he was not surprised at what Mr. Steeve and his associates did, but he did regret the way in which they had done it. He emphasized that as late as Nov. 9 he had asked them specifically at a staff meeting to declare that they would not assist any effort to organize a separate, rival campaign to that of the United Palestine Appeal.

"They told me they preferred not to answer that question," he reported. "That was the tip-off to me to get a new executive director. I told them that to organize a rival campaign for funds was a distinct act of disloyalty to the people of Israel."

Americans and acquitted themselves with courage and distinction."

Mr. Symington said Americans were proud of the "separate veins that flow into the bloodstream that we call America."

"Diverse in origin and each proud of his own ancestry," he continued, "separate in religion and political faith, and each true to his own, we Americans can and do remain united on the fundamentals of worthwhile living."

After accepting the portrait, Mr. Symington presented to Mrs. Levin a gold star pin which, he said, was "an expression from the heart of the American people that we share not only your grief in the loss of your son, but your great pride in having given your land of adoption, our beloved America, a soldier who did not flinch in the crisis, and who gave his life for the ideals of his country."

Also attending the ceremony, which was witnessed by about 200 persons, were Kenneth A. Royall, Secretary of the Army; Attorney General Tom Clark; W. John Kenney, Under Secretary of the Navy, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff of the Air Force.

The presentation of the portrait was sponsored by the Meyer Levin Post of the Jewish War Veterans in Brooklyn.

senting every Zionist group with the exception of the Revisionist movement.

Noting that the "UPA is cognizant of the necessity of promptly organizing the United Jewish Appeal effort for 1949," Mr. Weisman said in his memorandum that while discussions of a precise formula for representation have not yet been completed, "the executive bodies of the UPA and Joint Distribution Committee are getting ready to re-establish the United Jewish Appeal for 1949."

In his review of the facts to expand the United Palestine Appeal's governing bodies, Mr. Weisman, who is widely known in the Zionist movement, said:

"The emergence of Israel as the prime factor in fund-raising projects in the United States and the magnificent role played by Jews of all elements in the unprecedented response to Jewish needs in the last few years, prompted the consummation of this process."

Mr. Weisman served as co-chairman of the Palestine Appeal's executive committee before his designation as acting national chairman. Dr. Israel Goldstein recently resigned as national chairman to assume his new post as treasurer of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

SAYS AUSTRIA WANTS

me another demonstration that the Jews of Vienna and Austria feel themselves deeply attached to their Austrian homeland and are determined to regard themselves as members of the Austrian nation.

"The ruins of so many destroyed temples and the memory of so many mercilessly and vilely destroyed lives are a burden even today to many of the victims and cuts them off from those who honestly and honorably seek to reach their hearts. Let us push aside the ruins and make free to us the road to your hearts.

"Do not think that I am not aware that in this I demand of you something hard and great. However, may this hour of remembrance of the boundless suffering you were forced to bear give your spiritual strength and greatness to participate in this effort. The road is indeed difficult, but the goal justifies that effort."
